I - Read the story below

A PLAYFUL MOON

In front of their house a boy and a girl are playing with a balloon.
– Whose turn is it to throw the balloon ?
– Its my turn !
– No, its mine !
An argument flares up ; just then the red and blue balloon escapes…
It climbs, climbs up in the sky and above the trees, reaches the moon, hits it and knocks off its hook.
The moon falls on the ground and starts bouncing with the balloon !
What joy ! there are now two balloons, one for the boy and one for the girl.

French worldwide

Our planet has nearly 6 billion inhabitants, who live in approximately 200 countries or states. The people living in these countries speak in different tongues. There exists several hundred languages. A number of them are spoken only by a few thousand inhabitants. English is the most utilised in international trade, but Chinese is spoken by the greatest number of people. Throughout the world, over 200 million persons use French daily, 60 million in France and the rest in such countries as Belgium, Switzerland, Canada and certain African countries

French School

In France school is mandatory until the age of 16. Children first go to grade (Elementary) school, then to High school then to college. The very young go to kindergarten, which welcomes children of less than six years of age and is not obligatory, but it does prepare them for grade school and it is suggested to parents to enroll their children. In grade school, basic knowledge is acquired which prepares children for the adult world : reading, writing and arithmetic, as well as a learning a foreign language, becoming familiar with computers and many other things. That is why it is required to be assiduous and punctual. When a pupil misses school, he must bring a letter of excuse, signed by his parents.

Each school has five classes, which follow each other in turn, and which correspond to five levels of learning. As an example, here is a schedule of courses for eight-year olds :

A SCHOOL UNLIKE ANY OTHER...

Next morning, the young witches walking in rank entered the classroom where the magic potions test was to be held. As usual in such cases, there was a certain amount of anxiety, each one of them wondering whether she had well reviewed all the formulas of the programme. My neighbour the oldest of all witches, was the only one who felt no apprehension, she always knew everything and considered this sort of trial as a simple formality. She raised her finger :
– Excuse me madam, may we refer to our study notes ?
– Come, young ladies, take your seats ! Let's hurry ! Ordered the teacher.
One for each cauldron and no talking ! Here is the subject of the test : you must prepare a hilarious potion and it is forbidden to consult your books. You over there, please close your book immediately ! start working silently, and when you are finished, you shall partake of some of your potion to test its efficiency. Go ahead and start !
